

Demarao A. Gumby Jr.

May 31, 2007 - June 18, 2022

Demarao A. Gumby Jr., born Thursday, May 31, 2007, to Hermenia Puglia and Demarao A. Gumby Sr., transitioned unexpectedly at the tender age of fifteen on Saturday, June 18, 2022.

Demarao is survived by his parents; adopted father, Shaquille “Abe” Moore; five siblings, Iyanna Puglia, Naveia Puglia, Dalayia Puglia-Flemister, Saaidah Puglia-Murrell, Leo’Cavalli Puglia; four adopted brothers, as well as cousins, aunts/uncles and maternal grandparents, Angela Jones and Edwin Puglia. He was preceded in death by his paternal grandmother, Donna R. Nealy; and his maternal uncle, Nicholas Johnson.

Demarao, better known as “Fat Man” to close family, received his formal education at Yellow Breeches Educational Center and was looking forward to his tenth grade at Central Dauphin East High School and joining the football team. He was an avid football fan with his favorite teams being the Steelers and Chiefs. He also enjoyed video games with a special interest with PC gaming in Fortnite and Call of Duty. Lighting up any room he entered with his beautiful pearly white smile, no one could resist Demarao. You were guaranteed to laugh being in his presence. Demarao enjoyed quality time with family and friends. He had a soft spot for cuddling with his mother and exchanging jokes with his father. Demarao was a very humble and giving child. He would give anyone the shirt off his back and offer his last dollar. He was very protective of his siblings and any small children that fell within his circle.

Demarao will be deeply missed by his family, friends and all who knew him well.

“ This one goes out to all the victims of violence
This one goes out to the children preyed upon
This one goes out to the scared and the trafficked
This one goes out to the heart of gold been spit upon

*It's only partly about the culprits
It's mostly now your left with the pain there's some hurts that leave a deep cut Inside your heart and your brain*

*This one goes out to the hurt and the lonely
This one goes out to the deserted
This one goes out to the false imprisoned
This one goes out to the one on the sick bed*

*It's not really about your downfall
It's more about where you are right now
It's all about the final outcome
In your mind you think will I ever get out*

*Some pains are to great for words
Some pains are to big to digest
Still we are left with scars
Everyday we try to suppress*

*But I learned something in darkness
I know something because of a disease
I know in desperation
When others leave
My God never flees
He is the balm to my wounds
He is the answer for these streets
And when it's time He is my release*

“ Demarao Gumby is a wonderful child of God who I will see again in heaven. No one suffers without God seeing them. Some have long lives and some don't need as much time to make a lasting impression on the world. Demarao made an impression on me as his teacher and that is one of love pushing and growing through pain. Lord bless this child in heaven where there is no more pain.

“ I had the pleasure of working with Demarao while he was at Mooreland Elementary. He was such a sweet, funny guy. He could definitely give some push back but i never had trouble with him. We could joke around and anytime he flashed that smile you knew he liked you .I am so saddened by these events. I will be thinking of everyone in the family and i will cherish all of my memories i have!
