

James W. Manning

January 18, 1944 - June 18, 2025

James W. Manning was born on Tuesday, January 18, 1944, in York, PA, son of the late Jack Manning and the late Helen (Hall) Brown. He resided in Harrisburg, PA.

A graduate of William Penn High School in York, he, thereafter, served in the United States Army and retired from the New Cumberland Army Depot, New Cumberland, PA. He was a former member of Shiloh Baptist Church in York, a member of the Veteran's Association and a member of the American Legion. Leisurely, he enjoyed shooting pool, visiting with friends, reading and dancing.

On Wednesday, June 18, 2025, James W. Manning departed this life at eighty-one years of age. Along with his parents, he was preceded in death by siblings, Vernon Manning, Donald Hall, Jesse Manning and Walter Brown.

James' light will continue to shine in the hearts of his siblings, Carolyn Williams, Constance Scott, Stephen Brown, Zane Brown, all of York, PA, along with other family members and friends.

I always remember Uncle Bo as being sharp. Funny and smooth. He was always a great dresser and loved his family . Although I haven't seen Uncle Bill very much in my life, I always have fond memories of him stopping by the house and hanging with my dad. Vernon never forgot his laugh. Rest in peace Uncle Bo. You were that dude.

It took me a while to write this because it's been too many too soon in our family in succession but I felt the need to finally speak.

To my Uncle Bo, I always said that you look like Marvin Gaye. I felt as though you were looking down at your military memorial service last week and it all seemed so surreal. I really got to know you when you lived with us for a time after military deployment was over. You were such a quiet gentleman, and I amplify the word gentleman. You'll be greatly missed and you'll be in my heart forever. I love you, Uncle. Crystal Lowery 💜
