Sharon Holmes, daughter of the late James Morton and Katherine (Lewis) Morton, was born on Sunday, August 10, 1969, in Charlottesville, Virginia.

Sharon was educated in the Harrisburg Public School System, graduating from Harrisburg High School. She later completed some college coursework. Despite facing physical challenges in life, Sharon carried herself with resilience, grace, and a strong spirit.

She was a member of Martin Luther King Baptist Church, under the leadership of Pastor James E. Golden Jr., and was devoted to praising God and embracing her church home with joy. New to the congregation, she was lovingly introduced to the church by her aunt, Deborah White. Sharon enjoyed attending church and Bible study, finding comfort and strength in her relationship with God and her church family.

Sharon loved watching movies and television series, traveling to new places, and trying different foods along the way. She was always open to new adventures and experiences. Above all, she treasured time spent with her children, family, and friends, and she shared a special bond with her service cat, Cecil.
